DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-11, drawn to a computer system and method for providing high availability comprising a system management mode functioning independently of an operating system, classified in class 714, subclass 1.
- II. Claims 12-13, drawn to a method in a rack computer system for facilitating the replacement of a component card, classified in class 710, subclass 302.
- III. Claims 14-17, drawn to a telecommunication system comprising plural gateways, a gateway controller, and a system controller for responding to a malfunction event, classified in class 714, subclass 7.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the subcombination (group I) specifies that the computer system comprises a timer, a system management interrupt and an application level. The subcombination has separate utility such as responding to a system management interrupt triggered by a malfunction in the application level or operating system level.

Inventions I and III are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the subcombination (group I) specifies that the computer system comprises a timer and a system management interrupt. The subcombination has separate utility such as responding to a system management interrupt with a system management mode when a timer's duration has elapsed.

Inventions II and III are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions have not been disclosed as capable of use together and group II pertains to facilitating the replacement of a component card in a rack computer system, while group III pertains to a telecommunication system with separate components, monitored for malfunction by a central system controller.

Art Unit: 2114

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group II is not required for Group III, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group I is not required for Group II, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group I is not required for Group III, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

A telephone call was made to Kevin Reif on 8/11/2004 to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement, but did not result in an election being made.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Aaron D Matthew whose telephone number is (703) 605-1211. The examiner can normally be reached on Mon-Fri, from 8:00 am - 4:30 pm.
